Zuri Aki is the Public Policy Manager for the Council for Native Hawaiian Advancement (CNHA), whose mission is to enhance the cultural, economic, political, and community development of Native Hawaiians. Prior to his service at CNHA, he served as a Public Policy Advocate for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA), the State of Hawai'i agency responsible for the betterment of conditions of Native Hawaiians.

A self-described "policy wonk," his current focus is on developing Native Hawaiian economies in order to lay the foundation for a future recognized Native Hawaiian nation. He has earned a B.A. in Hawaiian Studies from the University of Hawai'i at Manoa and a J.D. from William S. Richardson School of Law with focus areas in Human Rights, International Law, Native Hawaiian rights and Environmental Law.
Keani Rawlins-Fernandez is the Vice-Chair of the Maui County Council. She holds the County Council seat for the Moloka‘i residency area. She is a well-known leader in her island community and a staunch advocate for Native Hawaiian rights, culture, and identity.

Among her many focus areas is Native Hawaiian women empowerment, which is a significant subject matter area in need of address — more than ever before — at a time like this. She has earned her B.A. in public relations, an M.B.A. and a J.D. with focus areas in Native Hawaiian and Environmental law.
Mehanaokala Hind

Mehanaokala Hind is the Community Engagement Director for the State of Hawai'i Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA), the state government agency responsible for the betterment of conditions of Native Hawaiians. Her responsibilities include building widespread public support for OHA’s efforts, improving public profile of Native Hawaiians and keeping key audiences involved and strongly attached to the organization’s priorities.

In her previous capacity at OHA, she served as the Knowledge Based Strategist Specialist and has contributed to executive leadership in a number of high-profile initiatives including, but not limited to, nation building, educational partnerships with charter schools and the University of Hawai‘i, Papahānaumokuākea cultural excursions, and advocacy at the United Nations. She is a kumu hula and cultural practitioner skilled in hula, oli (chant), and ritual. A graduate of Moanalua High School, Mehana attended Honolulu Community College before getting her B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Hawaii at Mānoa.
